Work Description:

The master thesis project "temporal densities" is an installation which experiments with transitions and tries to make them visible and tangible. Jan Carleklev has developed his project around the element of time. Relying on his knowledge about time as a composer, he transfers the rather abstract term into elements like event, transition, expectation and suspense. To design time can only succeed if one considers the attendee, acknowledging his/her role in creating an experience. The result is a conceptual piece appealing to multiple senses and crossing the boundaries between art, design and technology.
